TRADEMARK LAW REVISION ACT OF 1988

OCTOBER 3, 1988.—Committed to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union and ordered to be printed

---

Mr. KASTENMEIER, from the Committee on the Judiciary, submitted the following

REPORT

[To accompany H.R. 5372]

[Including cost estimate of the Congressional Budget Office]

The Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the bill (H.R. 5372) to amend the Trademark Act of 1946 to make certain revisions relating to the registration of trademarks, and for other purposes, having considered the same, report favorably thereon without amendment and recommend that the bill do pass.

I. PURPOSE OF THE LEGISLATION

The Lanham Act, the Federal trademark law, was adopted in 1946. Although it has been amended in various ways over the years, it never has been completely updated to bring the law into accord with the current realities of the marketplace. H.R. 5372 takes a major step in that direction by 1) permitting trademark registration applications to be based on the applicant's bona fide intention to use the mark in commerce; (2) explicitly granting consumers standing to sue for violations of Section 43(a) of the Act, which has become a Federal remedy for false and misleading advertising and other unfair competitive acts; and 3) reducing "deadwood" by changing the registration period from 20 to 10 years.<sup>1</sup>

II. STATEMENT OF LEGISLATIVE ACTIONS

On March 15, 1988, Representative Carlos Moorhead of California, the ranking minority member of the Subcommittee on Courts, Civil Liberties and the Administration of Justice of the House Committee on the Judiciary, introduced H.R. 4156, the Trademark Law Revision Act. H.R. 4156 represented a comprehensive revision of the Lanham Act, and was part of Representative Moorhead's long-standing commitment to a strong and vigorous body of intellectual property laws.

Similarly, on November 19, 1987, Senator Dennis DeConcini of Arizona introduced the companion Senate bill, S. 1883.

Both bills were based on recommendations of the United States Trademark Association, which, through its Trademark Review Commission, reviewed the status of the current law, and concluded that Congress should revise and update that law.

The Senate amended S. 1883 as introduced in several ways and passed it on May 13, 1988.<sup>2</sup>

On September 8, 1988, the Subcommittee on Courts, Civil Liberties and the Administration of Justice held one day of hearings on H.R. 4156. It heard testimony from Senator DeConcini; the President of the United States Trademark Association, Ronald Kareken; Yale Law School Professor Ralph Brown; Bruce Silverglade, the Director of Legal Affairs for the Center for Science in the Public Interest; Roberta Jacobs-Meadway, a private trademark practitioner; and Debra Goldstein, the Senior Vice President and Associate General Counsel for Ogilvy & Mather Advertising.

Senator DeConcini and Mr. Kareken spoke in favor of the bill as a whole, and, in general, both recommended that certain amendments adopted by the Senate should also be adopted by the House. Professor Brown, Mr. Silverglade, Ms. Jacobs-Meadway, and Ms. Goldstein testified to their concerns about certain parts of the proposal, either as introduced or as passed by the Senate. In addition, Mr. Silverglade advocated an addition to the legislation to specifically grant consumers standing to sue for violations of Section 43(a) of the Lanham Act.

On September 22, 1988, with a quorum being present, the Subcommittee on Courts, Civil Liberties and the Administration of Justice adopted an amendment in the nature of a substitute to H.R. 4156 offered by the Chairman of the Subcommittee, Robert W. Kastenmeier of Wisconsin. The amendment was adopted by a vote of 9 to 6. Another amendment in the nature of a substitute, encompassing the bill as passed by the Senate, was offered by Representative Moorhead, but was rejected, also by a vote of 9 to 6. The Subcommittee then reported the bill by voice vote, no objections being heard. Representative Kastenmeier introduced a clean bill, H.R. 5372, on September 23, 1988.

On September 27, the Committee on the Judiciary, with a quorum being present, considered two amendments offered by Representative Moorhead. The first was the same amendment in the nature of a substitute considered by the Subcommittee. It was defeated by a vote of 21 to 13. The second sought to delete the consumer standing provision. It too was defeated by a vote of 21 to 13. The Committee then favorably reported H.R. 5372 by voice vote, no objections being heard.

<sup>2</sup> The Senate's report was not filed until four months later, on September 15, 1988. S. Rep. No. 100-515, 100th Cong., 2d Sess. (1988).

III. BACKGROUND

As noted, the United States Trademark Association (USTA) proposed to the Congress a comprehensive revision of the Lanham Act. The proposal in turn was based on the review, debate, and recommendations of the USTA's Trademark Review Commission.<sup>3</sup>

The Lanham Act is widely considered to be inconsistent with current market practices in a number of respects. The USTA proposal was, at least in part, an attempt to conform the law to those practices, and to avoid the ad hoc nature of prior amendments to the Lanham Act.<sup>4</sup>

Most comprehensive revisions of the law generate some controversy, and this legislation is no exception. In fact, the trademark laws are usually particularly difficult to amend because of the sensitive interplay between those laws and the values protected by the First Amendment. Representative Bruce Morrison noted the dangers of monopolizing marks when he stated during Subcommittee consideration of H.R. 4156:

[W]e are dealing . . . with . . . the granting of ownership rights to particular words . . . in order to protect the ability of commercial enterprises to communicate clearly to customers [that they are purchasing] something of dependable quality, but we ought not to overstep the bounds.

As noted below, the Senate did not adopt some of the USTA recommendations. The Committee agrees with the Senate's decision and, in addition, has determined that still other recommendations must await consideration at a later time. By not adopting all of the USTA recommendations, the Committee does not by any means repudiate its enormous and valuable effort. Rather, it is a tribute to USTA that it achieved a wide consensus about the most central element of its proposed reform, a revision of the registration process to permit applications based on a person's intention to use a mark in commerce.

APPLICATIONS BASED ON "INTENT TO USE"

USTA's so-called "intent to use" recommendation won wide support. In fact, various "intent to use" proposals have been introduced in Congress, although without success, since 1938. The last two such proposals in the House of Representatives were introduced by Representative Kastenmeier in 1969 and 1971.<sup>5</sup>

The current system requires a person to make actual use of a mark before applying for registration. The amendment gives the applicant a choice: he or she may rely either on actual use of the mark in commerce or on an intention to use the mark. The objective behind the amendment was well stated by the President of the USTA, Ronald Kareken:

<sup>3</sup> "USTA Trademark Review Commission Report and Recommendations on the United States Trademark System and the Lanham Act," 77 Trademark Rep. 375 (1987) (hereinafter cited as USTA Trademark review Commission Report).

[The] pre-application use requirement (i) unfairly discriminates against U.S. citizens, as compared to foreign citizens, (ii) imposes significant legal risks on the introduction of new products and services; (iii) gives rise to the practice of "token use," (iv) gives preference to certain industries, frequently disadvantaging small companies and individuals, and (v) burdens the trademark register with marks which are not actually used in normal commercial transactions.<sup>6</sup>

The "intent to use" recommendation, at least in concept, has not been controversial. However, USTA's suggested implementation did prove controversial, to the extent that an "intent to use" applicant was permitted to sue before he or she made use of the mark and the mark was granted registration. The Senate's response to this controversy was to pass an amendment that would have permitted the lawsuit to be pursued up to the point of final judgment, but would have precluded the applicant from obtaining a final judgment before use and registration occurred. The Subcommittee on Courts, Civil Liberties and the Administration of Justice responded by deleting the entire provision, thus retaining current law, permitting only registrants (and others who have used trademarks) to sue. See, e.g., 15 U.S.C. 1114, 1116, and 1125(a). The Subcommittee chose this course of action because of the serious concerns expressed by persons with significant experience with the Federal court system. The first concern was practical in nature, in that the filing system of the Federal courts is incapable of routinely retaining in its files lawsuits that remain unresolved for up to four years. The second concern stems from the fact that the constitutional basis for the Federal trademark laws is use of the mark in commerce. Permitting a plaintiff to sue before use occurs thus raises serious questions about abuse of the judicial system, about whether Federal jurisdiction and a case or controversy exists, and about whether such a case is "ripe."

The Committee recognizes that if "intent to use" applicants cannot sue to enforce their rights, those rights may, at least in some situations, be rendered meaningless. On the other hand, it is unwilling to endorse a system that raises the serious questions propounded by the experts on Federal court matters. Since the effective date of the Trademark Law Revision Act is one year from the date of enactment, the Committee hopes to find a resolution of this issue by then.

The Subcommittee on Courts, Civil Liberties and the Administration of Justice reduced the proposed "intent to use" application term, during which an allowed application might be kept pending, from a total of four years to two years. It also changed the extension process, which is virtually automatic under the Senate bill, to one requiring a showing of exceptional circumstances. See discussion of Section 1 of the Lanham Act, infra. The Committee endorses these changes as well.

<sup>6</sup> Testimony of Ronald Kareken, Hearings on H.R. 4156, the Trademark Law Revision Act of 1988, before the Subcommittee on Courts, Civil Liberties and the Administration of Justice of the House Committee on the Judiciary, September 8, 1988.

AMENDMENTS TO SECTION 43 OF THE LANHAM ACT

A second set of recommendations by USTA proved highly controversial. These recommendations related primarily to proposed revisions of Section 43 of the Lanham Act, and would have prohibited omissions of material information disparagement and tarnishment of a mark, and dilution of a famous and distinctive mark. In addition, the remedies for violating these prohibitions would have been enhanced, through a proposal to explicitly apply Lanham Act remedies for registered marks to unregistered marks protected by Section 43. Serious questions were raised about these provisions by persons concerned with the dissemination of First Amendment protected communications, and with advertising their goods and services to the public.<sup>7</sup> Included among them are the Federal Trade Commission, broadcasters, publishers of newspapers, books, and magazines, the American Civil Liberties Union, advertisers, insurance companies, and practitioners.

The Senate deleted the proposals relating to material omissions and tarnishment and disparagement, but the dilution and enhanced remedies provisions remain in the Senate bill. The Moorhead amendment in the nature of a substitute, offered at Subcommittee and Committee, adopted the Senate bill. Based on the hearing record, the Subcommittee on Courts, Civil Liberties and the Administration of Justice deleted all of these proposals from the bill. The Committee endorses this action. The record is clear that these concerns warrant further consideration. For example, the Society of Professional Journalists noted that:

[N]ews reportage, comedy and satire, and editorial commentary may be threatened by [the dilution provision]. The remedy of injunctive relief to enforce this provision also raises the specter of an unconstitutional prior restraint.<sup>8</sup>

The National Public Radio voiced similar concerns:

Such antidilution statutes have been used to bring cases against persons doing satire. In addition, NPR undertakes extensive and award-winning consumer reporting on products which may affect the health and safety of the American public. Those programming pieces could be subject to unfair attack by those who disfavor them under the proposed antidilution provisions of the bill . . . NPR urges the Subcommittee to remove this provision from the bill in light of its potential for misuse against legitimate news, information, and entertainment programming.<sup>9</sup>

The National Association of Broadcasters, noting the "more stringent penalties if willful intent to trade on a registrant's reputation or cause dilution of a registrant's mark is shown," wrote that the dilution section raised concerns similar to those raised about the material omissions and tarnishment and disparagement provisions. The NAB concluded that, "In the rough and tumble of the marketplace of ideas, we are of the view that the instinct for protection of image generally must give way to greater First Amendment values."<sup>10</sup>

According to the National Newspaper Association, the Senate bill and the Moorhead amendment expand the scope of the Act's statutory remedies, including treble damages and attorney fees, beyond cases dealing with registered trademarks to cases dealing with all violations protected under the act, including [dilution. This section], in conjunction with [the dilution provision], constitutes an open invitation for new and substantial litigation against all media, including even the smallest newspaper.<sup>11</sup>

The Committee notes that the concept of "fair use" in trademark law is narrow,<sup>12</sup> and does not save these provisions from constitutional challenge.<sup>13</sup> In addition, it recognizes that a dilution statute by its very nature does not present issues of consumer confusion because the mark at issue is generally used on different goods or services than those for which the mark is registered. The lack of consumer confusion is irrelevant to the constitutional concerns presented here, because, as in satire and parody, the mark is usually deliberately not used on the same goods or services. Finally, the Committee notes that various commentators have expressed serious constitutional reservations about the existing 23 State anti-dilution statutes.<sup>14</sup>

The Committee endorses the deletion of all of the proposed amendments to Section 43(a), in favor of comprehensive and careful hearings on these important issues. It does not believe that these proposed amendments should be considered individually. Rather, they must be considered together and in context, so that their interaction with each other, and with First Amendment rights, may be fully examined. The Committee hopes that, in the next Congress, the many competing voices on these issues will be reconciled and that universally acceptable legislation will be enacted.

REDUCTION OF THE REGISTRATION TERM

The USTA recommended that the trademark registration term be reduced from 20 to 10 years, to reduce "deadwood," or marks on the Federal Register that are not being used but that remain unavailable for others to use.

As Mr. Kareken, the USTA President, stated during the Subcommittee hearings:

In terms of impact on the "deadwood" problem, the Trademark Review Commission calculated that approximately 15 percent, or over 49,200, of the active registrations issued from 1966 to 1985 would lapse at the end of a ten year term . . . [R]educing the term of registration will increase the frequency of renewals. . . .<sup>15</sup>

The Committee wholeheartedly adopts the USTA recommendation to reduce the registration term.

OTHER USTA RECOMMENDATIONS

Other USTA recommendations, such as a system to create and register security interests in trademarks, also raised questions about conforming the language actually proposed with both the intent of those making the recommendations and current practice under the Uniform Commercial Code. The Subcommittee on Courts, Civil Liberties and the Administration of Justice deleted these proposals from the bill to await further consideration of their purpose and their implementation. The Committee also endorses this deletion.

Many other USTA recommendations, largely technical in nature, were noncontroversial and have been adopted.

CONSUMER STANDING

The courts are divided about whether consumers have standing to sue under Section 43(a) of the Lanham Act, which has come to provide remedies for false and misleading advertising and other acts of unfair competition. The Committee supports the decision of the Subcommittee on Courts, Civil Liberties and the Administration of Justice to make it explicit that consumers do have standing under Section 43(a). It endorses the comments of the Chairman of the Subcommittee on Courts, Civil Liberties and the Administration of Justice almost ten years ago:

Congress should act once and for all to confront the delicate issue of standing and remove inappropriate judicially constructed barriers to the federal judicial system. Clarity and consistency ought to be the ultimate goals. This would render the courts more efficient by reducing the amount of time expended in resolving threshold issues; at the same time, it undoubtedly will increase their overall workload by raising the number of lawsuits filed in federal court. On balance, however, considering the other reforms discussed herein, the federal courts will not be unduly burdened by liberal standing legislation.<sup>16</sup>

CONCLUSION

The Committee believes that revision of the Lanham Act is well warranted. The Committee set aside until the next Congress certain other proposals suggested by the USTA, to ensure a thorough airing of the complicated and important issues raised by those proposals. Despite these deletions, H.R. 5372 as reported by the Committee makes important changes in the Act that will reconcile the law and current marketplace realities.

IV. SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS

Section 1 of the bill sets forth its short title, the "Trademark Law Revision Act of 1988."

Section 2 of the bill provides that, except as otherwise noted, the bill refers to the "Trademark Act of 1946," 15 U.S.C. 1051 et seq.<sup>17</sup>

Section 3 of the bill amends Section 1 of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1051) by creating a new subsection (b) to permit applications to register a trademark based on the applicant's bona fide intention to use the mark in commerce. The existing system, which remains in effect, permits applications only if actual use of the mark has taken place.

The "intent to use" applicant must make certain required showings to the Patent and Trademark Office (PTO), including those relating to the applicant's bona fide intention to use the mark in commerce, to the goods on or in connection with which the mark will be used, and to the "mode or manner" in which the mark will be used. In other words, the application must be limited precisely to just those goods or services to which the bona fide intention relates.

The Committee's requirement that the applicant have a bona fide intention to use the mark is intended to eliminate the current practice of "token use," including the practice of shipping a product across state lines solely to establish a basis for filing an application. The Committee recognizes that, especially for certain industries, it may be impossible to make use of a mark before a business makes a significant financial investment in the goods or services to which the mark will apply. To require the applicant to make that investment before it can seek protection of its mark works to the applicant's serious disadvantage. By the time the investment is made, and use occurs, someone else may have used the mark. To protect against this unfortunate situation, the practice of "token use" has arisen. By permitting applicants to seek protection of their marks through an "intent to use" system, there should be no need for "token use" of a mark simply to provide a basis for an application. The use of the term "bona fide" is meant to eliminate such "token use," and to require, based on an objective view of the circumstances, a good faith intention to eventually use the mark in a real and legitimate commercial sense. Obviously, what is real and legitimate will vary depending on the practices of the industry involved, and should be determined based on the standards of that particular industry.

The Committee recognizes that this system may allow a person, under certain circumstances, to apply to register more than one mark. For example, an applicant in good faith may apply to register more than one mark because he or she is unable to determine without test-marketing which mark will be the most commercially viable. The requirement that the intention be bona fide will reduce the risk of stockpiling of marks by someone who lacks the requisite intention. This requirement works in conjunction with the procedure by which an applicant may apply to extend an "intent to use" application. That procedure is limited, both by the need to justify an extension by exceptional circumstances and by the 18-month limitation on extensions. These two provisions are in turn closely tied to the revised definition of "use in commerce" in Section 29 of the bill, which requires "bona fide use of a mark in the ordinary course of trade, and not made merely to reserve a right in a mark." These three provisions will reduce unnecessary and unjustifiable deadwood, and will protect the system from abuse.

Once the "intent to use" application has been made, the Patent and Trademark Office will examine it and publish it for opposition if the Office determines that the mark would be registrable once use is made. Section 13 of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1063). If the application is not successfully opposed, the Patent and Trademark Office will issue a notice of allowance under new subsection (b)(2) of Section 13 (15 U.S.C. 1063 (b)(2)).

Subsection (b) of Section 1 of the Lanham Act also specifies that, with the exception of applicants proceeding under Section 44 (15 U.S.C. 1126) (relating to foreign applicants), no mark may be registered until actual use is made. New subsection (c) permits a showing of use, pursuant to subsection (a) of Section 1, to be made at any time during the pendency of the "intent to use" application.

Pursuant to new subsection (d)(1) of Section 1 of the Lanham Act, an "intent to use" applicant must make the required use of the mark within six months of the notice of allowance, and must make certain showings to the Patent and Trademark Office, including those relating to the actual goods or services on or in connection with which the mark is in use, and the "mode or manner" in which the mark is used. The Office may issue an appropriate certificate of registration once it examines the statement of use. The Office, as part of the examination, may consider the new information filed by the applicant and its effect on whether the mark is actually registrable under the standards set forth in Section 2 (15 U.S.C. 1052). This provision permits the Office to raise issues of registrability that might not be evident until the applicant makes available specimens showing the mark as used and/or clarifying the nature of the goods or services involved.

Subsection (d)(2) sets forth the procedure by which an "intent to use" applicant may seek an extension of the application period for not more than 18 months. The applicant must again make certain showings, and must specify the "exceptional circumstances" justifying the request.

The Committee is well aware that many legitimate circumstances may prevent an applicant from making the requisite use of a mark within the initial six month period. For example, a pharmaceutical company may be unable to use its mark because of delays in the Federal approval procedure. These delays are not attributable to the applicant, and are the kind of "exceptional circumstances" the Committee contemplates. Unavoidable and legitimate delays are not peculiar to the pharmaceutical industry, and the Committee intends that the Patent and Trademark Office take these situations into account when determining whether to grant the applicant's extension request. Substantially automatic and lengthy extensions are inappropriate, given that any extension will further tie up the mark and prevent anyone else from using it. It is therefore appropriate that extensions be granted only upon a showing of "exceptional circumstances."

Paragraphs (3) and (4) of subsection (d) describe the circumstances under which statements of use may be accepted or refused, and under which an application will be deemed abandoned.

Section 3 of the bill also makes certain technical and conforming changes in Section 1 of the Lanham Act.

Section 4 of the bill makes certain technical and conforming changes in Section 2 of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1052). It also amends the proviso, relating to concurrent registration, in subsection (d). Thus, use prior to the date of any pending application or registration will no longer be required when the owner of the application or registration consents to the grant of a concurrent registration to the applicant. However, the amendment does not alter two important aspects of the law governing the issuance of concurrent use registrations. First, the Commissioner must still determine that confusion and deception are not likely to occur if the concurrent use registration is issued. Second, to prevent such confusion and deception, the Commissioner continues to be able to impose conditions relating to the mode and place of use of the marks.

Section 4 also amends subsection (f) of Section 2 of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1052), relating to proof of the mark's acquiring secondary meaning. Under proposed subsection (f), the Commissioner may consider use during the five year period preceding the date when the claim of distinctiveness is made. Under current law, the stated relevant period is that preceding the application's filing date.

Section 5 of the bill makes a technical and conforming change in Section 3 of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1053).

Section 6 of the bill makes a technical and conforming change in Section 4 of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1054).

Section 7 of the bill amends Section 5 of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1055), to provide that if first use of a mark by a person is controlled by the registrant or applicant, such use shall inure to the benefit of the registrant or applicant.

Section 8 of the bill amends Section 6(b) of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1056(b)) by making a technical and conforming change.

Section 9 of the bill makes certain technical and conforming changes in Section 7 of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1057). It also adds a new subsection (c), which provides that although the mark may not be registered on the principal register until actual use occurs, nationwide constructive use will exist once the mark is registered, and will date from the time of the filing of the application. This constructive use will give the applicant priority against all but prior users and those who have an earlier filing date.

Section 9 also redesignates current subsection (c) as new subsection (d), and fills a loophole in it that might otherwise be created by the new "intent to use" application procedure. While a company related to an "intent to use" applicant generally may make the requisite use in commerce, such as will not support the granting of a certificate of registration to that related company if at the time use was made, the "intent to use" applicant and the related company had agreed that the mark should be assigned to the related company. Otherwise, the Act's prohibition against certain assignments of "intent to use" applications<sup>18</sup> could effectively be avoided. The Committee recognizes that the Patent and Trademark Office, in determining whether to grant the certificate of registration, may be unable to discover such an agreement. However, the issue may be relevant to any subsequent litigation, and may well be revealed during discovery. This procedure is akin to other situations where the PTO is unable to discern the circumstances surrounding the use of a mark. For example, there may be no way for the PTO to know that a mark is not being used on all of the goods for which it is registered when an application or Section 8 declaration is filed. This fact also might come to light only during the discovery process.

Section 10 of the bill amends Section 8(a) of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1058a) to reduce the term of registration from 20 years to ten.

Section 11 of the bill conforms to the change in the original registration term, and amends Section 9(a) of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1059(a)) by reducing the term of renewal from 20 years to ten.

The amendments made by Sections 10 and 11 will greatly reduce the amount of "deadwood" on the Federal trademark register. The Committee agrees with USTA that the problem of "deadwood" is a serious one. Unused marks on the trademark register prevent others wishing to use those marks from doing so. These amendments, in conjunction with the amendments to Section 1 of the Lanham Act, relating to the length of an "intent to use" application's term and to the requirement that the applicant's intention to use the mark be bona fide, and to Section 45, relating to the definition of "use in commerce," will have a substantial effect on reducing "deadwood."

Section 12 amends Section 10 of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1060) by providing that an "intent to use" application may be assigned only to a successor to the business of the applicant or to that portion of the business to which the mark relates. The business of the applicant must be "ongoing and existing." This requirement fills a loophole that would permit otherwise prohibited assignments. For example, an "intent to use" applicant may intend to create a new business in which the mark will be used but decide, after the application is made, not to do so. Without the requirement that the business be "ongoing and existing," the applicant would be able to assign the marks that are the subject of the "intent to use" application to another business, which purports to be a successor to the first company's no longer existing business. By closely limiting assignments, these provisions will protect against trafficking in marks and help ensure that the intention of the "intent to use" applicant is bona fide.

Section 12 of the bill also makes certain technical and conforming changes in Section 10 of the Lanham Act.

Section 13 of the bill makes certain technical and conforming changes in Section 12(a) of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1062a).

Section 14 of the bill makes certain technical and conforming changes in Section 13 of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1063), and sets forth the procedures by which a certificate of registration may be issued to applicants who have actually used their marks and to foreign applicants under Section 44 of the Act, and by which a notice of registration is published. It also sets forth the procedures by which a notice of allowance may be issued to "intent to use" applicants.

Section 15 of the bill amends Section 14(c) of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1064(c)) to substitute the term "generic name" for "common descriptive name." It also provides that a service mark registration may be cancelled when the mark has become the generic name of the service, and that if the mark has become the generic name of only some of the goods or services in the registration, the cancellation will extend only to those goods and services, and not to the rest of the registration.

Section 16 of the bill amends Section 15(4) of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1065 (4)) by changing "common descriptive name" to "generic name."

Section 17 of the bill makes certain technical and conforming changes to Section 16 of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1066).

Section 18 of the bill amends Section 18 of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1068) to give the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board the authority to cancel a registration in whole or in part, to limit or otherwise modify the goods or services in a registration or application in order to avoid a likelihood of confusion, and to determine trademark ownership rights where they are at variance with the register.

Section 19 of the bill makes certain technical and conforming changes in Section 21 of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1071).

Section 20 of the bill makes certain technical and conforming changes in Section 24 of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1092).

Section 21 of the bill makes certain technical and conforming changes in Section 26 of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1094).

Section 22 of the bill makes certain technical and conforming changes in Section 29 of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1111).

Section 23 of the bill amends Section 30 of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1112) to make certain technical and conforming changes. It adds language to reflect that an "intent to use" applicant may apply to register a mark for all the goods or services on or in connection with which it has a bona fide intention to use a mark. It also amends the proviso to permit the Commissioner to eliminate multi-class applications if they become unwieldy under the "intent to use" application system. This is simply an administrative change, and it will have no effect on the rights of applicants and registrants or on the costs of applying to register and renew a mark.

Section 24 of the bill makes a technical and conforming change in Section 32(2) of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1114(2)).

Section 25 of the bill makes technical and conforming changes in Sections 33(a) and 34(d) of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1115a and 1116). It also amends Section 33(b) of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1115(b)(5)) to reflect the constructive use provision established in Section 7(c) of the Act, which provides that once a mark is registered on the principal register, it has a nationwide constructive date of first use as of the application filing date. The legal effect of this provision is comparable to that of the earliest use of the mark at common law.

Section 26 of the bill amends Section 39 of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1121 and 1121a) to make certain technical and conforming changes.

Section 27 of the bill amends Section 43(a) of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1125(a)) to explicitly permit consumers, as well as businesses, to sue for violations of that section. Section 43(a) has come to prohibit false and misleading advertising, as well as other acts of unfair competition. As Representative Fritz Lanham said in 1946 during initial consideration of the Act, an essential purpose of the law is to "protect the public so it may be confident that, in purchasing a product bearing a particular trade-mark which it favorably knows, it will get the product which it asks for and wants to get."<sup>19</sup> Consumers, as well as businesses, are entitled to this assurance, and to protection if their rights are violated.

Section 43(a) permits any "person" who is damaged to sue. Courts interpreting this language have divided over the question of whether consumers as well as businesses have standing to sue. The Second Circuit, for example, has held that Congress did not intend to grant consumers the right to sue. Colligan v. Activities Club of New York, Ltd.<sup>20</sup> While noting that the legislative history of Section 43(a) is unclear, the court nonetheless found that "Congress deliberately excluded from coverage virtually all categories of unfair competition but for false advertising." It also found that granting consumers standing would increase the workload of the Federal courts and that adequate remedies to protect consumers existed in the States.<sup>21</sup> The court's analysis not only is unsupported, but also appears outdated. First, the Subcommittee heard persuasive testimony that adequate protection for consumers is not available elsewhere.

[D]uring the past two decades, the Federal Trade Commission has gradually abandoned its traditional role of bringing cases to prohibit false and misleading advertising . . . In the 1980s, . . . FTC enforcement [was limited] to case involving outright fraud . . . The need for a private right of action for consumers is even more apparent in light of the recent decline in voluntary self-regulation by the business community . . . Only twelve states have adopted some form of the Uniform Deceptive Trade Practices Act which provides consumers with a private right of action. Furthermore, such actions are effective only within the boundaries of the issuing state [citations omitted].<sup>22</sup>

Second, as the USTA acknowledges, while Section 43(a) originally was "narrowly drawn and intended to reach false designations or representations as to the geographical origins of products, [it] has been widely interpreted to create, in essence, a federal law of unfair competition."<sup>23</sup>

Other courts have rejected the Second Circuit's reasoning. In Thorn v. Reliance Van Co., the Third Circuit found that,

"[u]nder a plain meaning interpretation of section 43(a) it is this court's function to grant standing to Thorn if he is a person who believes that he has been damaged by [the defendant's] use of false representations . . . We reject the Colligan decision to the extent that it is contrary to the plain meaning rule as set out by the Supreme Court [citations omitted]."<sup>24</sup>

The Ninth Circuit, citing 15 U.S.C. 1127, has found that Section 43(a)'s use of the word "person" includes "juristic persons" as well as "natural persons," and that the Colligan decision "has been sharply criticized."<sup>25</sup> Other courts have found that the Section's purpose is 'the protection of consumers and competitors from a wide variety of misrepresentations of products and services in commerce . . . The section is clearly remedial and should be broadly construed' . . . [The economic interests it protects include] that of the public to be free from harmful deception [citations omitted].<sup>26</sup>

A leading trademark commentator has agreed with this broader reading of Section 43(a). Jerome Gilson, in his treatise "Trademark Protection and Practice," has written:

<sup>22</sup>Statement of Bruce Silverglade, Legal Director, Center for Science in the Public Interest, Hearings on H.R. 4156, the Trademark Law Revision Act of 1988, before the Subcommittee on Courts, Civil Liberties and the Administration of Justice of the House Committee on the Judiciary, September 8, 1988.

<sup>24</sup>Thorn v. Reliance Van Co., Inc., 736 F.2d 929, 832 (3rd Cir. 1984). The plaintiff in Thorn was not a consumer, but rather an investor in a business allegedly harmed by the defendant's conduct; the Third Circuit therefore had no difficulty finding that the plaintiff had standing.

[A]lthough the Section on its face contains no such restriction, it has been held not to protect noncommercial consumers generally but only to protect commercial plaintiffs from unscrupulous commercial conduct. In the opinion of this author, this narrow interpretation runs counter to the decisional trend and is inconsistent with the board application which should be given to such a remedial statute.<sup>27</sup>

The Committee believes that giving consumers standing to sue under Section 43(a) is consistent with these principles and purposes.

Section 28 of the bill makes certain technical and conforming changes to Section 44 of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1126). It also requires that those applying for registration of a mark in the United States on the basis of a foreign registration or claiming a foreign priority date must state a bona fide intention to use the mark in commerce. This requirement will not affect this country's obligations under the Paris Convention, because applicants under Section 44(e) are not required to make use of the mark prior to registration. Section 28 also amends subsection (e) to clarify that use in commerce is not required prior to registration when the application is based on a foreign registration in the applicant's country of origin.

Section 29 of the bill amends Section 45 of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. 1127). It revises and updates the definitions of "trademark," "service mark," "certification mark," and "collective mark" by including any word, name, symbol, or device, or any combination thereof, which a person has a bona fide intention to use in commerce and which that person applies to register on the principal register.

Section 29 also amends the definition of "use in commerce" in Section 45, to require the bona fide use of a mark in the ordinary course of trade. While use made merely to reserve a right in a mark will not meet this standard, the Committee recognizes that the "ordinary course of trade" varies from industry to industry. Thus, for example, it might be the ordinary course of trade for an industry that sells expensive or seasonal products to make infrequent sales. Similarly, a pharmaceutical company that markets a drug to treat a rare disease will make correspondingly few sales in the ordinary course of its trade; the company's shipment to clinical investigators during the Federal approval process will also be in its ordinary course of trade. The definition of "use in commerce" is consistent with the Committee's intention to eliminate the practice of making a single shipment—"token use" solely for the purpose of reserving a mark. See discussion of Section 3 of the bill, supra.

Section 29 also amends the term "abandonment of mark" in Section 45 so that it is consistent with the new definition of "use of commerce."

Section 30 adds a new Section 51 to the Act, providing that the ten year registration term will apply to all registrations that issue on or after the effective date of the legislation.

XI. STATEMENT OF THE CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
Washington, DC, September 29, 1988.

HON. PETER W. RODINO, Jr.,
Chairman, Committee on the Judiciary, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The Congressional Budget Office has reviewed H.R. 5372, the Trademark Law Revision Act of 1988, as ordered reported by the House Committee on the Judiciary, September 27, 1988. We expect that enactment of the bill would not result in any additional net cost to the federal government.

H.R. 5372 would amend the Trademark Act of 1946 by establishing a system whereby individuals or concerns could apply to register marks in the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) based on an intention to use the mark in commerce. In addition, the bill would reduce the term of a trademark registration from twenty years to ten years. Also, additional requirements for maintaining a registration would be imposed. A final provision would permit consumers to sue companies for false advertising in connection with a trademarked product.

Based on information from PTO, we expect that the number of trademark applications processed each year would increase, resulting in greater processing costs. Because these additional costs would be fully funded by registration fees paid by applicants, we expect that no net increase in outlays would result.

We expect that other provisions of the bill would have no significant budget impact.

No costs would be incurred by state or local governments as a result of enactment of this bill.

If you wish further details on this estimate, we will be pleased to provide them. The CBO staff contact is Douglas Criscitello, who can be reached on 226-2850.

Sincerely,

JAMES L. BLUM,
Acting Director.

Subject to examination and acceptance of the statement of use, the mark shall be registered in the Patent and Trademark Office, and a certificate of registration shall be issued for those goods or services recited in the statement of use for which the mark is entitled to registration, and notice of registration shall be published in the Official Gazette of the Patent and Trademark Office. [(d)] (e) If the applicant is not domiciled in the United States he shall designate by a written document filed in the Patent and Trademark Office the name and address of some person resident in the United States on whom may be served notices or process in proceedings affecting the mark. Such notices or process may be served upon the person so designated by leaving with him or mailing to him a copy thereof at the address specified in the last designation so filed. If the person so designated cannot be found at the address given in the last designation, such notice or process may be served upon the Commissioner.

MARKS REGISTRABLE ON THE PRINCIPAL REGISTER

SEC. 2. No trademark by which the goods of the applicant may be distinguished from the goods of others shall be refused registration on the principal register on account of its nature unless it—

Concurrent registrations may also be issued by the Commissioner when a court of competent jurisdiction has finally determined that more than one person is entitled to use the same or similar marks in commerce. In issuing concurrent registrations, the Commissioner shall prescribe conditions and limitations as to the mode or place of use of the mark or the goods in connection with which such mark is registered to the respective persons.]

(d) consists of or comprises a mark which so resembles a mark registered in the Patent and Trademark Office, or a mark or trade name previously used in the United States by another and not abandoned, as to be likely, when applied on or in connection with the goods of the applicant, to cause confusion, or to cause mistake, or to deceive: Provided, That if the Commissioner determines that confusion, mistake, or deception is not likely to result from the continued use by more than one person of the same or similar marks under conditions and limitations as to the mode or place of use of the marks or the goods on or in connection with which such marks are used, concurrent registrations may be issued to such persons when they have become entitled to use such marks as a result of their concurrent lawful use in commerce prior to (1) the earliest of the filing dates of the applications pending or of any registration issued under this Act; (2) July 5, 1947, in the case of registrations previously issued under the Act of March 3, 1881, or February 20, 1905, and continuing in full force and effect on that date; or (3) July 5, 1947, in the case of applications filed under the Act of February 20, 1905, and registered after July 5, 1947. Use prior to the filing date of any pending application or a registration shall not be required when the owner of such application or registration consents to the grant of a concurrent registration to the applicant. Concurrent registrations may also be issued by the Commissioner when a court of competent jurisdiction has finally determined that more than one person is entitled to use the same or similar marks in commerce. In issuing concurrent registrations, the Commissioner shall prescribe conditions and limitations as to the mode or place of use of the mark or the goods on or in connection with which such mark is registered to the respective persons;

(e) consists of a mark which, (1) when [applied to] used on or in connection with the goods of the applicant is merely descriptive or deceptively misdescriptive of them, or (2) when [applied to] used on or in connection with the goods of the applicant is primarily geographically descriptive or deceptively misdescriptive of them, except as indications of regional origin may be registrable under section 4 hereof, or (3) is primarily merely a surname;

(f) except as expressly excluded in paragraphs (a), (b), (c), and (d) of this section, nothing herein shall prevent the registration of a mark used by the applicant which has become distinctive of the applicant's goods in commerce. The Commissioner may accept as prima facie evidence that the mark has become distinctive, as [applied to] used on or in connection with the applicant's goods in commerce, proof of substantially exclusive and continuous use thereof as a mark by the applicant in commerce for the [five years next preceding the date of the filing of the application for its registration.] five years before the date on which the claim of distinctiveness is made.

SERVICE MARKS REGISTRABLE

SEC. 3. Subject to the provisions relating to the registration of trademarks, so far as they are applicable, service marks [used in commerce] shall be registrable, in the same manner and with the same effect as are trademarks, and when registered they shall be entitled to the protection provided herein in the case of trademarks, except when used so as to represent falsely that the owner thereof makes or sells the goods on which such mark is used. The Commissioner may establish a separate register for such service marks. Applications and procedure under this section shall conform as nearly as practicable to those prescribed for the registration of trademarks.

COLLECTIVE AND CERTIFICATION MARKS REGISTRABLE

SEC. 4. Subject to the provisions relating to the registration of trademarks, so far as they are applicable, collective and certification marks, including indications of regional [origin used in com- merce,] origin, shall be registrable under this Act, in the same manner and with the same effect as are trademarks, by persons, and nations, States, municipalities, and the like, exercising legitimate control over the use of the marks sought to be registered, even though not possessing an industrial or commercial establishment, and when registered they shall be entitled to the protection provided herein in the case of trademarks, except when used so as to represent falsely that the owner or a user thereof makes or sells the goods or performs the services on or in connection with which such mark is used. The Commissioner may establish a separate register for such collective marks and certification marks. Applications and procedure under this section shall conform as nearly as practicable to those prescribed for the registration of trademarks.

USE BY RELATED COMPANIES

SEC. 5. Where a registered mark or a mark sought to be registered is or may be used legitimately by related companies, such use shall inure to the benefit of the registrant or applicant for registration, and such use shall not affect the validity of such mark or of its registration, provided such mark is not used in such manner as to deceive the public. If first use of a mark by a person is controlled by the registrant or applicant for registration of the mark in respect to the nature and quality of the goods or services, such first use shall inure to the benefit of the registrant or applicant, as the case may be.

DISCLAIMERS

SEC. 6. (a) The Commissioner may require the applicant to disclaim an unregistrable component of a mark otherwise registrable. An applicant may voluntarily disclaim a component of a mark sought to be registered.

(b) No disclaimer, including those made under [paragraph (d)] subsection (e) of section 7 of this Act, shall prejudice or affect the applicant's or registrant's rights then existing or thereafter arising in the disclaimed matter, or his right of registration on another application if the disclaimed matter be or shall have become distinctive of his goods or services.

CERTIFICATES

SEC. 7.(a) * * *

(c) Contingent on the registration of a mark on the principal register provided by this Act, the filing of the application to register such mark shall constitute constructive use of the mark, conferring a right of priority, nationwide in effect, on or in connection with the goods or services specified in the registration against any other person except for a person whose mark has not been abandoned and who, prior to such filing—

(1) has used the mark;

(2) has filed an application to register the mark on the principal register which is pending or has resulted in registration of the mark on the principal register; or

(3) has filed a foreign application to register the mark on the basis of which he or she has acquired a right of priority, and has timely filed an application under section 44(d) to register the mark on the principal register which is pending or has resulted in registration of the mark on the principal register.

[(c)] (d) A certificate of registration of a mark may be issued to the assignee of the applicant [ , but the ]. No certificate of registration may be issued to a related company of the applicant if the application was filed under section 1(b), if the use in commerce relied upon in the affidavit of use was use by the related company and if, at the time such use was made, there was an agreement between the applicant and the related company that the mark should be assigned to the related company. The assignment must first be recorded in the Patent and Trademark Office. In case of change of ownership the Commissioner shall, at the request of the owner and upon a proper showing and the payment of the [fee herein provided] prescribed fee, issue to such assignee a new certificate of registration of the said mark in the name of such assignee, and for the unexpired part of the original period.

[(d)] (e) Upon application of the registrant the Commissioner may permit any registration to be surrendered for cancelation, and upon cancelation appropriate entry shall be made in the records of the Patent and Trademark Office. Upon application of the registrant and payment of the prescribed fee, the Commissioner for good cause may permit any registration to be amended or to be disclaimed in part: Provided, That the amendment or disclaimer does not alter materially the character of the mark. Appropriate entry shall be made in the records of the Patent and Trademark Office and upon the certificate of registration or, if said certificate is lost or destroyed, upon a certified copy thereof.

[(e)] (f) Copies of any records, books, papers, or drawings belonging to the Patent and Trademark Office relating to marks, and copies of registrations, when authenticated by the seal of the Patent and Trademark Office and certified by the Commissioner, or in his name by an employee of the Office duly designated by the Commissioner, shall be evidence in all cases wherein the originals would be evidence; and any person making application therefor and paying the [fee required by law] prescribed fee shall have such copies.

[(f)] (g) Whenever a material mistake in a registration, incurred through the fault of the Patent and Trademark Office, is clearly disclosed by the records of the Office a certificate stating the fact and nature of such mistake, shall be issued without charge and recorded and a printed copy thereof shall be attached to each printed copy of the registration and such corrected registration shall thereafter have the same effect as if the same had been originally issued in such corrected form, or in the discretion of the Commissioner a new certificate a registration may be issued without charge.
